

Dog Boarding in the Past The most common reasons for not owning a pet are lack of time, lack of suitable housing, and lack of ability to care for the pet when traveling.

Not anymore! No one knows exactly when Dog Boarding became a service.

In the early 1900's there was no place you could board a pet. Later, as the importance of family pets grew, veterinarians would keep healthy dogs whose owners were away along with the sick pets they were attending. Now days, pet boarding has blossomed into an industry of its own. As of 2011, there are thousands of pet boarding facilities across the nation.
